December 07-08, 2022
Jamshedpur, India

Organized by
IIM Jamshedpur Chapter in association with
Tata Steel, CSIR-NML & NIT Jamshedpur

About the Conference

Failure of the components and infrastructure due to corrosion and associated reasons enormously impact the industry and society at large. The i3C will provide a platform to disseminate the knowledge, advancement and technology development on corrosion and coatings. Industry, academia and research organisations are invited to share their ideas and get benefited by participating in this international conference.

Scope of the Conference

Integrity and performance of engineering component and infrastructure is the one of the foremost requirements for sustainable growth of a country. This has attracted scientists and technologists to probe into the various aspects of material degradation. Corrosion is among the most prominent and often the only reason attributing to material loss or component failure. Among various mitigation strategies, coating and surface engineering are the most versatile and acceptable solutions in industries. The IIM Jamshedpur Chapter in association with Tata Steel Limited, CSIR-NML and NIT Jamshedpur is pleased to organise the International Conference on Corrosion and Coating (i3C). This conference provides a platform to researchers, academia, industries, corrosion control & coating providers and technologists to share technical advances, challenges and solutions. The conference aims to cover various areas on corrosion and coatings including the following:

- ✓ Sustainable advancements in corrosion prevention and coating
- ✓ Hot dip, thermal spray, CVD, PVD, MAO, nitriding and laser coatings
- ✓ Aqueous, non-aqueous (electroless, electroplating, electrophoretic)
- ✓ Functional coatings, passivation and thin organic coatings
- ✓ Corrosion in oil & gas, chemical, nuclear & thermal power plants, construction and mobility industries
- ✓ Localized corrosion, high temperature oxidation and corrosion
- ✓ Corrosion monitoring, auditing, failures analysis and prevention
- ✓ Corrosion modelling and prediction

Conference Venue and dates:

The conference will be held during December 07-08, 2022, in the Steel City of Jamshedpur.

Abstract Submission

The conference will comprise of invited as well as contributory papers. The authors are requested to submit an abstract by August 31, 2022. The abstracts should be restricted to one A4 size page and typed in the template as given in the website www.i3c.info

All the papers presented (with at least one author registered) will be included in a soft proceeding of full manuscript, which will be available for the delegates during the conference. Subsequently, a few selected manuscripts will be published, after peer review, in a journal (to be announced later) after the conference.

STEEL CITY OF JAMSHEDPUR

The conference will be organised in the steel city of Jamshedpur which is the first planned industrial city of India, founded by Late Jamshedji Nusserwanji Tata, and is located in the East Singhbhum district of Jharkhand. As the name signifies, the district was commonly known as the 'Land of Lions'. The city has a population of more than 10 lakhs and the surrounding areas of Jamshedpur are rich in minerals of iron, copper, uranium and gold. Jamshedpur, besides being an industrial hub, is a popular tourist destination surrounded by Dalma Hills, Subarnarekha and Kharkai rivers. The Dimna lake, Jubilee park, Chandil dam, Dalma hills, zoological park and the laser show are some of the attractions in Jamshedpur for a short time visitors. The city has a pleasant climate and the district has around one third forest area. Normal temperature in the month of December is around 65° F. It is situated at a distance of 131 and 250 km from Ranchi and Kolkata, respectively, and is well connected by air (Ranchi is the nearest airport) and rail.
